

Training In Peace Support Operations from UNITAR POCI: Self-Paced Distance Training and Classroom Courses 2007

UN peacekeepers and humanitarian workers bring peace and relief to regions torn by strife and conflict. At the close of 2006, there were 80,000 UN personnel representing 114 nations, serving on 18 UN peacekeeping missions. The United Nations Institute for Training and Research Programme of Correspondence Instruction (UNITAR POCI) provides students of all nations with self-paced distance training to prepare them to serve on peacekeeping missions.

Who May Enrol

Students from 132 nations have enrolled in correspondence courses from UNITAR POCI. These students include commissioned military officers, non-commissioned officers, diplomats, NGO employees, humanitarian workers, teachers, police, and serious citizens interested in peace.

One Course, Several Courses, or Earning the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations

Students may enrol in one course or several courses, or they may enrol in the programme leading to the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations. For more information see the next page.

What Each Course Contains

Each course contains all needed reading materials. Courses range from seven to 17 lessons and from 110 to 560 pages. Each lesson contains learning objectives, study material, and a self-scoring quiz with answers provided. At the end of each course is an End-of-Course Examination, which the student submits for grading.

How to Enrol

Enrolment may be made through the UNITAR POCI website, by mailing or faxing the attached form, or by providing the same information in a letter, e-mail, or voice phone call. Course materials are delivered immediately online or in one to two weeks worldwide in printed form depending on local delivery schedules.

End-of-Course Examination and Certificate-of-Completion

After a student has studied all lessons and finished the quizzes, he or she completes the unique 50-question multiple-choice End-of-Course Examination provided with their course. Exams submitted on-line are scored immediately, or answer sheets may be faxed or posted to UNITAR POCI. If students achieve a passing grade of 75%, they are awarded a Certificate-of-Completion for that individual course from UNITAR POCI. If students fail the End-of-Course Exam, they are provided one opportunity to take an alternate form of the exam following further study. Over 90% of UNITAR POCI students pass the first or second End-of-Course Examination.

Use of the Internet

By logging on to the UNITAR POCI homepage, students may enrol, submit their exams, e-mail with their course author, and participate in the message board. However, students with no internet access may still receive this same support through post, fax, or telephone.

Three Enrolment Structures

Students may choose from three enrolment structures, each designed to meet different needs. Students may enrol in individual correspondence courses; all 20 correspondence courses; or a cooperative programme leading to the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations.

Cours en Français

Tous les cours du programme UNITAR POCI seront disponibles en français dans le courant de l'année 2007. Pour les dernières versions disponibles, visitez le site <http://www.unitarpoci.org/fr/>.

Cursos en Español

Las versiones en español de todos los cursos de UNITAR POCI van a estar en disposición durante el 2007. Para ver las últimas versiones actualizadas vean <http://www.unitarpoci.org/es/>.

Individual Correspondence Courses

UNITAR POCI offers 20 different self-paced correspondence courses, all of which are available in English. Of these 20, seven are available in French, two in German, one in Russian, ten in Spanish, and three in Swahili. A detailed description of each course is provided on pages 4-8 of this brochure, and an enrolment form is provided on the inside of the back cover page. Individual enrolment fees range from US $75 to $145 per course.

All 20 Correspondence Courses

Students wishing to enrol in all 20 self-paced correspondence courses receive a significant savings in the enrolment fees. The total cost of enrolling in each course individually would be US $2,390; however, students enrolling in all 20 at once pay only $1,600. All 20 courses are shipped directly to the student. Courses are also available in PDF format that can either be provided on a CD-ROM or accessed from the internet at reduced cost.

Options for Course Formats

Enrolment for courses may be submitted through telephone, mail, fax, or the internet at <http://www.unitarpoci.org>. See page 23 for an order form to enrol by mail or fax. For each course in which you would like to enrol, please select the format in which you would like to receive the course: Printed (shipped to you on paper); CD-ROM (shipped to you in PDF format on CD-ROM); or Download (PDF download from the internet). Please note that the on-line downloads and courses on CD-ROM are not interactive but are PDF versions of the exact same courses students receive on paper. See the order form for course pricing.

College and ACCP Credits

The U.S. Army Institute for Professional Development has reviewed UNITAR POCI courses and determined they merit Army Correspondence Course Program (ACCP) credits. The American Council on Education (ACE) recommends college credits for some of the courses.

Academic Credits Towards a Bachelor's Degree by Distance Learning

Students who complete UNITAR POCI courses can earn academic credits that may be applied towards a Bachelor's Degree in International Relations from the American Public University System (APUS)*. APUS holds regional and national accreditation and provides all courses exclusively on-line. For additional details on how your UNITAR POCI courses may be applied towards a university degree, visit <http://www.amu.apus.edu/unitar>.

Earning the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations (COTIPSO)

UNITAR POCI, in cooperation with the United Nations Department of Peacekeeping Operations Integrated Training Service (DPKO ITS) and participating national and regional peacekeeping training centres, and selected universities, offers the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations (COTIPSO). This comprehensive three-part programme typically takes 18 to 24 months to complete. Students may begin with either correspondence courses or a classroom course as discussed below:

1. One Correspondence Course Per Month for 12 Months: Students are enrolled in a programme of Distance Education that provides 12 self-paced correspondence courses from UNITAR POCI over a 12-month period. Students may select from the courses listed on pages 4-8 of this brochure. Students have access to the UNITAR POCI website and peacekeepers' message board.

2. Classroom Course: Students attend a resident classroom course of the student's selection at one recognised regional or national peacekeeping training centre or approved college or university. Classes are scheduled at locations worldwide. See <http://www.unitarpoci.org> or page 9 of this brochure for additional details on classes and convening dates. Any fees for the resident classroom course are the responsibility of the student and are not included in the fee for the COTIPSO.

3. An Original Research Thesis: Students complete an original research thesis under the supervision of an approved Thesis Adviser. These are graduate-level papers and, when approved, are web-published through the UNITAR POCI website and made available to the public. Students who complete the three components of this cooperative programme of study will earn the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations.

Cost of COTIPSO Enrolment

The cost for enrolment in the programme is US $1,989 (not including the cost of the classroom course which is handled directly between the student and the classroom course provider). The fee of US $1,989 covers all costs, including 12 correspondence courses, the thesis, and the actual awarding of the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations. See page 9 of this brochure for additional information.

* Note: APUS is a private, for-profit university system encompassing American Military University and American Public University. APUS offers on-line associate, bachelor's, and master's degrees catering heavily to military and government-employed students.

Bulk-Enrolments and Programmes for Institutions, Missions, Nations, NGOs, and Other Organisations

Individual students interested in studying peacekeeping and related topics will see on the following pages of this informational brochure how they may enrol directly in the courses available from UNITAR POCI. But for national ministries of defence, NGOs, IGOs, peacekeeping missions, educational institutions, and other organisations working for peace, UNITAR POCI offers several bulk-enrolment programmes whereby institutions integrate these UNITAR POCI courses into their own training programmes. These bulk programmes can be made available to institutions upon request.

Integrated Distance Learning Programme (IDLP)

Most UN Missions subscribe to the IDLP, providing Local Staff, UNVs and some others at these missions with UNITAR POCI courses through the IDLP. To see if your mission participates, contact your Mission Training Focal Point (TFP).

Special Programmes for all Personnel Serving on UN Missions

All personnel serving on UN missions are eligible for special programmes designed to meet the needs of International Staff, National Staff, Military Observers, UN Police, UNVs, members of formed military units, and others. If you are serving on a UN Mission, visit <http://www.unitarpoci.org/join> for details.

Distance Learning Programme for Nations (DLPN)

Under the DLPN, national training programmes and UNITAR POCI jointly provide distance courses on peacekeeping. Military personnel from the participating nation are provided peacekeeping training directly through UNITAR POCI courses at no cost. Customised national websites are maintained by UNITAR POCI and provide all student support. Peacekeepers from nations participating in DLPN may receive their courses either in printed booklet form or as on-line downloads. Certificates-of-Completion show national and UNITAR POCI certification.

Distance Learning Programme for Organisations (DLPO)

Under the DLPO, employees of NGOs, IGOs, PVOs, and others are provided training directly through UNITAR POCI courses. Customised institutional or organisational websites are maintained by UNITAR POCI and provide all student support. Students participating in DLPO may receive their courses either in printed booklet form or as on-line downloads. Certificates-of-Completion show organisational and UNITAR POCI certification.

E-Learning for African Peacekeepers (ELAP)

All peacekeepers or other military personnel, gendarmerie, and police who are citizens of African nations may enrol through ELAP at no cost. This is made possible through the generous support of Canada, Croatia, and Norway. For details, visit <http://elap.unitarpoci.org>.

Students who enrol in any two Logistics courses at the same time receive a reduced combined tuition of US $160, or all three for a reduced combined tuition of US $225.

Earning the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations

Students wishing to earn the Certificate-of-Training in United Nations Peace Support Operations complete three educational experiences:

1. 12 self-paced correspondence courses (selected from pages 4-8 of this brochure) over a 12-month period;
2. One of the recognised and approved resident classroom courses from the table shown below; and
3. An original thesis written under the supervision of an approved Thesis Adviser.

Students may begin this programme by starting with either correspondence study or classroom attendance. Any one of the resident classroom courses listed below will satisfy the classroom residency requirement (see note, page 20 regarding United Nations University). The classroom courses are listed on this page by date but on the following pages are in alphabetical order by Cooperating Institution and include more detailed descriptions, contacts, and web pages. Students should identify the classroom course in which they wish to enrol and contact the Cooperating Institution directly regarding details of admission.

The course analyzes the complex relationships between gender, violence and peace. The perspective proposed is that of political theory which will allow for a detailed analysis of the specific relations of gender and power including but not limited to economic power. It will also focus on the intersections of gender, sexuality, class, race, ethnicity and religion.

Conflict Prevention and Human Rights (IPS-6011)

In English, TBD

The course will review the role of human rights in the establishment of conflict prevention, in the international arena as well as in national environments. It will then review the tools that the post-WWII awareness in human rights generated, and also their effectiveness in today's world. Lastly, alternative elements of conflict prevention will be introduced.

Advanced Seminar on United Nations Peacekeeping Missions

In French, May 7-18, 2007

This two-week course on the management of peacekeeping operations, entitled "Séminaire d'approfondissement des missions de paix des Nations Unies," aims at developing in the student the skills of analysis and intervention within the framework of United Nations peacekeeping missions. The course will allow the student to best study the interactions and the interrelationships between the various components of a UN mission, including international, regional, and local actors and their respective missions.
